SEVENTH GRADE BOY WOUNDS HIS TEACHER, SELF

WOMAN, 60, TO RECOVER

Refusal For Permission To See Girl Cited

TOLEDO, Sept. 24 — (UP) — Fuzzled parents, teachers and police today sought an answer to why a 12-year-old seventh grader shot his 60-year-old woman school principal then turned the gun on himself because she wouldn't let him see the dark-eyed girl who sat two seats ahead of him.

In Toledo hospital lay June Mapes, veteran principal of Arlington school, wounded seriously but expected to recover.

In another hospital was Robert Snyder, wounded critically by the same Mauser automatic pistol he fired at Miss Mapes in the school office yesterday afternoon.

Police were questioning Miss Mapes. Their only clue to a motive was Robert's mother's statement that her son staggered home yesterday, blood on his face, with the familiar schoolboy plaint that Miss Mapes had been "awfully mean to me."

Reads Too Much? They theorized that the quick trigger role he played in her office yesterday might have been a combination of boyish fantasies (Continued on Page Eight)

PEOPLE AGAINST COURT REVISION, LONDON PREDICTS

TOPEKA, Kans., Sept. 24 — (UP) — Alf M. Landon greeted President Roosevelt's invasion of the West today with a challenge that he carry the judiciary fight to the people—and "take a licking."

"The president is now in the position of being unable to retreat or to go forward without suffering serious losses in his influence with the people and in his control over congress," the former governor of Kansas and 1936 Republican presidential nominee said. "I hope he will put the question of enlarging the supreme court up to the people. That, at least, is the fair and democratic thing to do, and if he does, he'll take a licking."

Sitting behind a big desk at a window high up over Topeka's main street, Landon as titular head of the Republican party is keeping in touch with national politics. He is firmly convinced that things are looking up for his party.

JAP FORCES STRIKE SNAG

Chinese Defenders Halt Infantry, But Many Suffer Shell Shock in Long Battle

SHANGHAI, Sept. 24 — (UP) — A Japanese mass offensive was stopped cold on the Shanghai front today by Chinese regulars.

For hours, Japanese artillery pounded the Chinese lines. They smashed block houses and other defenses above ground. Troops stayed in trenches and dugouts. Most of the casualties, Chinese army spokesman said, were from shell shock. But it was said that the lines held and that one officer, Maj. Chang Wei-Win, said in a report he sent back:

"They won't blast us out with all the dynamite in Japan."

After a 14-hour steady barrage, the Japanese raised their line of fire. Tanks went over the top from the Japanese trenches and the infantry followed. Chinese artillery then went into action, Chinese reports said, and with the aid of trench mortars and machine guns stopped the attack. Chinese then counter-attacked and late this afternoon fighting still proceeded.

Heroin Acknowledged Chinese spoke highly of the bravery of the Japanese infantrymen and said they continually exposed themselves to fire. The result, however, was heavy losses. At Nanking, the capital's population awaited another air raid. Chinese planes chased off a Japanese fleet that went to bomb Canton, in the south, following up the terrible raids of yesterday in which the death estimate ran as high as 3,000.

Japanese planes yesterday bombed Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, dispatches said, and villages on the Kiangsi-Fukien province border. In the north Japanese claimed the capture of Paoting, important base on the Peiping-Hankow railroad, and other reports agreed they had entered the town if not captured it.

VETERANS ELECT BOSTONIAN, CLOSE NEW YORK CONFAB

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 — (UP) — The American Legion gave Times Square, Broadway and Fifth avenue back to New Yorkers today, after ending its national convention by electing Daniel J. Doherty, Boston lawyer, as national commander to succeed Harry W. Colmery, of Kansas.

Only a small rear guard remained, and the city became itself again. Thousands of legionnaires had hurried home by train, bus, airplane and automobile. Other thousands sailed for Europe to participate in reunions in England, France and Italy, and to visit the battlefields on which they fought 20 years ago.

Doherty embarked at midnight aboard the United States liner Washington for France, after pledging himself to "carry out to the best of my ability the mandates of the convention, to which I am wholeheartedly committed."

Before concluding the boisterous four-day convention, the 1,339 official delegates adopted resolutions calling for enactment of a federal universal draft act, advocating strict neutrality by the United States in international disputes, demanding "adequate" national defense and urging federal laws to deport aliens and punish citizens who "advocate the overthrow of the government by force, fraud or violence."

SOVIET PLEDGES 300 WAR PLANES TO TOKYO'S FOE

Great Supply of Munitions Prepared By Reds, Domei Agency Declares

SOLDIERS TO BE OFFERED

Moscow To Assume Control of Huge Territory

TOKYO, Sept. 24 — (UP) — China and Russia are negotiating a secret political and military treaty as the result of which China is to get a gigantic supply of war munitions, the Japanese Domei news agency asserted today in a dispatch from Shanghai.

As only one item in a detailed list of war materials which it was alleged Russia was to send to China, the Domei agency cited a fleet of 300 airplanes.

In addition, the dispatch reported, China would get 100 anti-aircraft guns, 200 field guns, 500 artillery shells, 50,000 rifles, 100,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, 100 tanks, 1,500 machine cars, 5,000 horses, 2,000 trucks and 2,500 motorcycles. The agency asserted that the agreement was nearing conclusion and that Russia was to send the "first installment" of war materials during October or November.

Advices Promised Aside from the arms, the agency alleged, Russia promises to provide China with volunteer soldiers and technical advisers.

The agency said that negotiations were proceeding at Nanking and Moscow and that the resultant treaty was to be a mutual military assistance pact, bolstering the recent non-aggression treaty.

The Domei agency asserted that the treaty was aimed directly against Japan, and envisaged closest co-operation of Chinese Communists and Communist International with a joint anti-Japanese defense committee.

Russia, according to the dispatch, would assume control of a North China Soviet to include Manchukuo and inner Mongolia, leaving Chinese communists free to operate in the rest of China.

In return for the Russian concessions, China, the agency alleged, was to permit unrestrained (Continued on Page Eight)

GERMANS PREVENT MENUHIN PLAYING VIOLIN CONCERTO

LOS GATOS, Calif., Sept. 24 — (UP) — The German government today deprived Yehudi Menuhin, the young maestro, of the right to render the world premiere of Robert Schumann's lost violin concerto. The Germans will play it first.

Publishing rights are controlled in Germany and Menuhin had to acquiesce. He was grieved and outraged. The now famous concerto has been one of the delights of his life and he had hoped to play it for the first time in public at St. Louis Nov. 12.

"It is shocking and interferes with serious contractual obligations in this country," the violinist exclaimed.

It is the only concerto Schumann ever wrote for the violin and was recently discovered hidden in the vaults of a German museum where it had reposed 81 years. Schumann hid it. His life's ambition was to write such a masterpiece and the fact that it was not accepted in his lifetime probably contributed to his moroseness and death in a mad house.

FOLSOM WARDEN DIES OF WOUNDS

Clarence Larkin Victim Of Knife Cuts After Sunday Rioting

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 24 — (UP) — Warden Clarence Larkin of Folsom prison died in a hospital at 1:05 a. m. of knife wounds inflicted Sunday by rioting convicts.

Three others, two of the seven rioters and one prison guard, died during the outbreak. He was stabbed 12 times with the crudely fashioned daggers of the convicts, which included one nine-inch, sharpened nail.

The warden's death was attributed to lung infection and peritonitis. He was unconscious and in an oxygen tent when he died. His wife, Mrs. Lillian Larkin, was at the bedside.

Larkin was promoted to the command of California's toughest prison in 1936. He came up in the ranks, from a guard, then captain of the yard, to warden.

He was a husky figure, six feet four inches tall, and an expert on penology. He was 46.

He gave his life to prevent the seven convicts' escaping. The warden was in the office of Yard Captain William J. Ryan, conducting the prison's regular interviews with convicts, when the seven desperadoes rushed in. Capt. Ryan and two guards were also in the room. They were overpowered. Warden Larkin tried to beat off the attackers with his cane, his (Continued on Page Eight)

R. S. TRAIN DRAWING CROWD IN MIDDLEWEST

indications Are That Chief Executive Will Ignore Senate Foes

BURKE NOT ON COACH

Nebraska Governor Calls on Roosevelt

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN, ENROUTE TO SEATTLE, Sept. 24—(UP)—The President enters the Northwest today on a schedule that seems certain to provoke charges that he was willfully ignoring senate Democrats who helped defeat the supreme court reorganization bill.

The question arose first in connection with Sen. Edward R. Burke, D., Neb., who did not accompany Gov. Cochran of Nebraska aboard the train in Chicago or appear during a brief operating stop in Omaha.

It was raised again by telegrams to newspapers saying that various Wyoming politicians had been asked aboard and inquiring whether Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., one of the supreme court bill rebels, would be invited. O'Mahoney's plans were not learned but Mr. Roosevelt's associates said no one had been invited to confer with him. O'Mahoney, passing through Omaha this week, said he was hurrying home to "welcome the President to Wyoming."

Associates Happy

Mr. Roosevelt's associates are jubilant as the special sped onward from the noisy Iowa welcomes toward states of prominent bolters. Some of their enthusiasm appears to be based on evidence that hope of further federal relief spending of loans may be out-pulling the supreme court or the Ku Klux Klan for popular mid-western attention.

Mr. Roosevelt today enters Wyoming, home state of O'Mahoney, Democrat, who last month challenged the administration to "get out their knives and tomahawks, because we are going to have a real battle." He will make his first regularly scheduled appearance on this trip in Cheyenne at 9:30 a. m. (MST), and stop also at Wendover, 1:45 a. m. (MST) and Casper, 4:30 p. m. (MST).

No speeches were scheduled for Iowa and the special sped through Nebraska at night. Mr. Roosevelt having retired when the train reached Omaha at 10:43 p. m. (CST). But an unannounced pause at Clinton in eastern Iowa was so well received by a crowd that other Iowa stops were scheduled. Mr. Roosevelt got his first big ovation in Marshalltown, Iowa, with a promise that government could stabilize farm crop prices without going bankrupt. He emphasized that he was "on a trip of inspection."

There was one shout of "What about Wheeler," in Iowa and another promising to "vote for Roosevelt in 1940."

COLLECTIONS $913,938

Ashville's Latin Club Begins Active Program

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Latin is no longer the "dead language" that it was in the days when our parents studied it. To be sure we still study the classics—Caesar, Cicero, Virgil—but we have many things in addition that link our subject to modern life and to other subjects such as history, English and geography. Our Latin Club, organized two years ago, helps to select material of interest to supplement our required text-book work.

For instance, we have translated various Latin plays, poems and modern parodies, and have solved several Latin cross-word puzzles.

The first study unit of the club this year dealt with the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, the work of restoring the city of Pompeii (destroyed by the eruption), and the knowledge gained by its restoration. We based our discussion on Pliny's letter to Tacitus describing the catastrophe, and the death of his uncle, Pliny the Elder. Pictures play an important part in such discussions; for we draw them upon our collection in the Latin Club Scrap Book.

Our second unit dealt with the Paul Atkins, assistant chairman of the saddle classes, was appointed by Robert D. Musser, chairman of that division, to meet with the board of education to discuss the possibility of using the high school athletic field. The saddle classes would be held on Thursday and Friday nights, the same as last year. Vacant lots near the school grounds could be used for tents to stable horses.

Since the athletic field is equipped with lights, officials believe it would be the ideal place for the saddle horse show.

The draft horse exhibit, in charge of Bernard W. Young, would be shown and judged on Friday afternoon.

Tentative plans for the saddle horse show include nine events each evening. Officials hope to have entry lists ready for distribution in three or four days. An addition to the show this year will be jumpers.

Officials of the Horse Show, a major feature of the Pumpkin Show, met in the offices of the Eselman mill Thursday night for a discussion of show plans.

Tentative arrangements are to hold the draft horse show on the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. field, W. Mound street, where the entire show was held last year.

IL DUCE LEAVES TO VISIT WITH NAZI CHIEFTAIN

Mussolini To View German Army Maneuvers On Baltic Coast

SPEECHES ARE ARRANGED

Ciano, Other High Fascists With Premier

ROME, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini, head of Fascist Italy, left by special train at (6:20 a. m. EST) for a four-day visit with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, German Nazi chieftain—a visit intended to show the world that the dictators are united against any who oppose either.

He is to arrive at Munich tomorrow, leave there tomorrow night to attend the big German army maneuvers on the Baltic coast, arrive in Berlin Monday, be a fellow-speaker with Hitler at the Olympic stadium Tuesday, and leave Wednesday.

Leaders Along
The importance which Mussolini attaches to his visit was made clear from the retinue he selected to accompany him—Count Galeazzo Ciano, his son-in-law and foreign minister; Achille Starace, secretary general of the Fascist party; Dino Alfieri, minister of press and propaganda (called now minister of popular culture) and his private secretary, Osvaldo Sebastiani.

Tomorrow is to be a holiday in Munich in his honor, Tuesday is to be a holiday in Berlin. Berlin has been lavishly decorated and there are to be triumphal processions and a great military parade. Everything has been done to show here, and at Berlin, that this is a meeting of political cousins, united and particularly united against Bolshevism. It is to be a further strengthening of the "Berlin-Rome axis" of co-operation.

The visit will be the second between the dictators. Hitler visited Mussolini at Venice three years ago, and that time the success of the meeting was not notable. Many thought that Hitler seemed a little unhappy when he alighted from his airplane to be greeted by Mussolini and proceed to his hotel to a chorus of cheers—for Mussolini.

God in the Making of a Nation

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 28 is Deuteronomy 8:11-20, this being the quarterly review lesson. The Golden Text is verse 11, "Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day.")

"BEWARE THAT thou forget not the Lord thy God—But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God." Here is the keynote of all Moses had to say in the farewell addresses to Israel which make up the Book of Deuteronomy. Thankfulness is the natural corollary of thoughtfulness. If we think we thank, especially if we think of God and of all he has done for us. Thanklessness, more often than otherwise, springs from thoughtfulness. An attitude of insensibility is the result of constant repetition of the same sense perceptions. Folk who live near noisy factories eventually become unconscious of the noise. The regularity of the recurrence of an experience tends to produce indifference toward it. Just so it is with the unceasingly regular blessings of God's loving providence to his children. We do not think and thank him for the blessing of health until sickness threatens us. We do not think and thank him for prosperity until the adversities of depression loom before us. "Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments—lest when thou hast eaten and are full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein and when thy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied; then thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage." If we think aright we must thank aright!

Moses was reminding the people of their national debt—not to money lenders, but to Jehovah, who found them in slavery, brought them forth from bondage by a marvelous redemption, led them through that great and terrible wilderness... brought them forth water out of the rock of flint... fed them in the wilderness with manna, that he might humble them and prove them... and that they might never say, "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth." We, too, as Americans, have such a national debt of which we should especially remind ourselves on this 150th anniversary of our Constitution. In his first Thanksgiving Proclamation President Washington sought to remind the nation of its debt to God as Moses sought to do for Israel. He exhorted "the People of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being, who is the beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be—that we may then all unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks for his kind care and protection of the People of this Country previous to their becoming a nation—for the signal and manifold mercies and the favorable interpositions of his Providence; for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have

John W. Geer Admits Fraud As He Appears Before Judge Adkins' Court

FRYE TRIAL IS SCHEDULED

Mansfield Man Charged With Auto Death of Girl

John W. Geer, 39, a Texan, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary Thursday afternoon by Judge J. W. Adkins of common pleas court when he pleaded guilty to an indictment charging that he obtained endorsement of a check under false pretenses.

Geer was returned to Circleville this week from LaGrange, Texas. He was charged with passing a worthless check, July 26, for $75.85, bearing the endorsement of Karl J. Herrmann, N. Washington street, after falsely representing the check to be valid.

Herrmann and Geer returned from France in the same casual company after the World War.

Trial of Robert Frye, 28, of Mansfield, on a second degree manslaughter charge, has been set for Oct. 28.

The charge resulted from the death of Miss Elsie Harvey, 18, of Wharton, W. Va., on June 27. She died of injuries received when she was struck by Frye's auto on Route 23, just south of Circleville.

Frye is alleged to have made a wide swing on a curve.

Miss Harvey was walking along the highway, believed to have been hitch-hiking to her home.

Several local young people played with the county 4-H band at Robtown on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schull have moved from the Briggs farm to the Joe Kirk farm.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Give a man a horse he can ride," urges the old ballad, and what a headache that is for Hollywood!
Not that Hollywood is without enough horses. It's the kind of horses. In making Western action pictures real cowboys are used and a real cowboy insists on a real cow pony in order to do his stuff properly, and there just aren't enough cow ponies to go around.
In "North of the Rio Grande," latest of the "Hopalong" Cassidy stories, opening tonight on a double feature program with "On Such a Night," starring Karen Morley, at the Cliftona Theatre, for instance, one hundred and fifty cowboys are used and that many horses had to be provided. These men do some pretty hard riding. Among other things they have to chase a speeding train, and livery stable horses or even ordinary riding horses couldn't stand the gaff.
As a result, ranchers around Hollywood generally reap a golden harvest when a Western action picture is being made. Many of these keep a number of cow ponies on hand for such emergencies, and these horses are constantly being exercised and groomed by trained cowboys to keep them fit for the work.

AT THE GRAND

Bob Steele, one of the most realistic of all western players, is at the Grand theatre Friday and Saturday in "Breed of the Border." The fourth chapter of "Wild West Days" is scheduled, too.

KAI-SHEK FEARS WAR WITH JAPS TO BE 100 YEARS

NANKING, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, strong man of China and commander in chief of the armies, said today that the Chinese-Japanese war might last for 100 years.

"This war will last as long as Japanese aggression lasts in China," he said. "When the aggression ceases, hostilities will cease. Remember it has been going on really for six years since Japan seized Manchuria. It may go on for a century. Whether Japan last that long depend on the attitude of the world—and Japan."

Chiang complained of the attitude of foreign powers, and particularly of the United States. "The present attitude of the nations of the nine-power treaty and the League of Nations covenant indicated that they are all under Japanese domination, because they are allowing the Japanese to violate these pacts without doing anything to prevent it," he said.

(The nine-power treaty, of which the United States was a signatory, binds participants to preserve and respect China's territorial and political integrity; the league covenant binds league members to defend each others' integrity.—ed.)

TO RETAILERS

MERCHANTS: United effort is the only way in which a civic undertaking can be made successful. Such action is necessary to make Circleville's Fall Fashion Revue the outstanding event that it should be. George Griffith, the new president of the Retailers' association, has announced that 51 merchants have pledged themselves to participate. If all of these business houses enter the spirit of the Revue in a co-operative manner the success of the project is assured. The Retailers' association should speak for all business houses in the city; when its directors decree a holiday or an event of any kind that should be taken as final and 100 percent participation should result. More power to the organization in its Fall Fashion Revue plans.

FRIENDS: Have you ever made a trip through the hill districts to the South and East of Circleville in the Fall? Within a few weeks the trees will be painted in their gayest colors. A drive through the district will be long remembered. Make plans now to visit the hill country and enjoy a picnic or outing at one of the state parks.

FARMERS: I notice other Ohio counties are making plans for their corn husking contests. So far no steps have been taken for a Pickaway county event. There should be no difficulty in finding suitable fields for a contest this year. Making plans early for this type of attraction creates more interest and assures larger crowds. I believe immediate arrangements should be made for the contest.

TO BOYS, GIRLS

PUPILS: Saturday is the annual Ohio High School day at Ohio State university, and more than 600 of you are planning to visit the great institution for a day's outing to be capped, of course, with a football game in the afternoon. I hope that you have a real time with lots of fun and entertainment. Remember, though, there are certain things expected of you. Conduct yourselves as young gentlemen and young ladies; be careful that you do not suffer an injury of any kind, and that you do not damage any of the university property by any of your actions. Do not attend the game unless you already have your ticket. All schools have ordered tickets requested by the pupils. All persons going to the stadium without a ticket will be forced to pay the full admission or remain outside. A warning voiced this week by Lynn Black of the state highway patrol should be remembered. It is: "Do not ride with heads and arms out the windows of buses and automobiles. This is a dangerous practice at any time." The day for you pupils begins early in the morning, and I hope you will be present to enjoy every minute of it.

My utmost desire is that you continue to support the high school program by attendance at all games. The outcome of last week's football game was disappointing to nearly all who witnessed the contest, but no one is more displeased with the showing of the Tiger team than the members of the squad and their coach. They have been striving diligently this week to make up for their failure to win last Friday, and I am sure the engagement with Worthington will be interesting. Remember, game time is 8 o'clock.

OFFICIALS: I read with interest that a contract has been consummated with a public utility company to provide power for Rural Electrification lines now being constructed in Fairfield county. This means that Pickaway county's program is that much nearer a certainty. Construction of lines has started in our neighboring county, and Pickaway officials have the assurance of Washington authorities that money for the Pickaway county part of the tri-county project will be forthcoming at an early date. Pickaway countians, now without any modern electrical equipment, devices or service, appreciate efforts being made in their behalf.

TO SHOPPERS

FOLK: A new type of traffic trouble was reported this week. Many shoppers complain about persons crowding the corners of Court and Main streets. They complain that "group meetings" and "reunions" could be held at some other place besides the center of the sidewalks. They are heartily in favor of friend talking with friend but they suggest some location, outside of pedestrian lanes, be used for the meetings.

Tim Kennedy, who has been writing a suicide note to himself in his wife's handwriting, graduated into homicide from the school of armchair murderers. At middle age, having made a fortune in marriage to Esther Ashwell, and possessing a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim felt happy and secure. Then Esther was run down by a truck. Weeks later she was brought home, a physical wreck and a cripple for life, with only a hint of her former beauty left. Tim lost all interest in his wife because of her appearance. He suggests they hold their annual tennis party despite her condition. He looks forward to an appointment with Alma Shepherd, a widow and new client whom he has suggested to Esther they invite to the tennis party. At his office Tim arranges special flowers for Mrs. Shepherd's benefit as she arrives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 10

IN AN interval when she was able to speak, Alma Shepherd sighed, as she sat in Kennedy's dental chair.

"I've enjoyed your flowers," she said. "I've got a tiny garden at Maybank—half an acre. It doesn't give much scope."

"One can get a lot of fun out of a small garden."

"But not much variety. . . . You know, I think I've passed your place. It's in the forest, isn't it—off the Bradstock road?"

This was coming halfway to meet him with a vengeance.

"That's right. You go down that steep lane turning off to the left at the top of the ridge opposite Gates' farm. It's a perfectly beastly little lane, steep and narrow and winding. Our house, The Wilderness, is to the left, about three-quarters of a mile down—there are two big stone pillars where a gate was once."

"Yes, I've passed it. It looked a lovely place."

"You must come and see it one day. . . . Are you a tennis player, Mrs. Shepherd?"

"Yes, I love tennis. Though I haven't played seriously for several years now."

"We're having a little tennis party on Saturday afternoon, about half past two. Just a few friends. I would very much like you to meet my wife. We're to come along, if you've nothing else on hand."

Perfectly easy and unforced. . . . Nevertheless, he awaited her reply with some trepidation.

"I'd love to. . . . Oh, but I'm afraid I can't." Her face clouded over. "I promised to take Phyllis Granley for a run into Westbourne."

"That's too bad. But perhaps we can fix it. We know Phyllis—we were going to ask her too. I can ring her up—that is, if you'd really like to come?"

"Oh, I would. After all, we can go into Westbourne any day."

"Righto. . . . Now, Mrs. Shepherd, bite gently on that."

She obeyed, smiling.

"All right?" he asked, "Perfect?"

"Absolutely."

"I thought it would be. . . . Perhaps I'd better just take a look at the rest. . . . You know, Mrs. Shepherd, you are as near having a perfect set of teeth as anyone I've ever seen. You must look after them very well."

"They've never given me any trouble. Do you know, Mr. Kennedy, you're the first dentist I've been to since I was a child?"

"Is that really so? You're very lucky to have kept out of our clutches. . . . And there now, I can't find a possible excuse for keeping you in mine. There's not a blemish."

He helped her out of the chair. "I'll ring Phyllis now, if you don't mind waiting a moment."

"Not a bit of it." He went to the desk, and took up the telephone. "Hello. Nine six, please. . . . Is that the rectory? . . . Oh, hello, Mr. Granley, Tim Kennedy speaking. Is Phyllis about the house? Good, I'll wait. . . . Hello, Phyllis. Look, will you come up for our annual on Saturday? . . . No, wait, I know all about that. Mrs. Shepherd is to be in my surgery, and I've asked her to come too. She says she'd love to. Is she a truthful lady? . . . Well, that's fixed then. . . . No, my dear, that's quite all right. It was Esther's own suggestion. She wants to make as few changes as possible. You understand. Right, then. . . . Good-bye."

He put up the receiver, and turned smilingly to Mrs. Shepherd. "That's settled, then."

"Splendid! Thanks most awfully—it's really kind of you."

"It's a great pleasure. There'll be about half a dozen of us. . . . My wife can't play just yet, I'm afraid. She had a bad accident last year."

"Yes, I heard. I'm so sorry." Tragedy exacted the tribute of a moment's pause.

"She'll be very happy to meet you, though," said Kennedy.

"And I her." Mrs. Shepherd held out her hand. "Well, many thanks again."

"You're forgetting your daffodils." Kennedy took half a dozen of the choicest blooms from his vase. "I expect these will be a bit long for the vase in your car," he added. "If you wait just a moment I'll trim them up."

He took a pair of scissors, held the flowers together, and with delicate precision snipped about four inches off the stalks. "That's better," he said.

"You are thoughtful."

He smiled deprecatingly. "Not at all. . . . I hope you have a nice day in town."

"It's nothing exciting—just shopping. . . . Well—till Saturday."

"Till Saturday."

He saw her into Adams' care in the hall, then returned to the surgery, a warm glow of satisfaction within him.

In the small hours of Saturday morning Esther had one of her nightmares. She was in a narrow lane, across which a great tree was on the point of falling. There were people about, and they cried out to her in warning. She heard the cries, she knew the tree was about to fall upon her, but she could not see it. She had to run, but blindly, she did not know where to run.

There was an obstacle in her way. She had to move it, she had to move it. . . . The nurse, who slept in the adjoining dressing room with the door open, found her crouched at the foot of the bed, which she had managed to move a yard out of its true alignment.

She had bruised her hands a little, but otherwise done herself no hurt. Sitting on the edge of the bed after breakfast, which he had taken up for her, she was inclined to take the matter lightly.

"It was that Welsh rabbit," he said.

Tim: "That's settled them."

"I don't think you need stay down too long. You can make your excuses after tea—they'll understand. I can look after them all right."

The nurse bustled in.

"You bad man," she said. "You know this room is out of bounds for you at this time. Get along with you!"

Kennedy smiled sweetly at her, and withdrew.

DIET AND HEALTH

Better Revise Technique of Brushing Teeth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
EIGHTY MILLION people or more in our enlightened land do not brush their teeth—or didn't the last time I counted them, which was the last time I wrote an article on this subject a year or two ago. Maybe as a result of that article they are fewer than they were.

Dr. Clendening

According to my dentist, however, not one in ten of the people who do brush their teeth, do it the right way.

Here are the principles of scientific tooth brushing.

First, the object. The main object of brushing the teeth is not to prevent dental decay, but to prevent pyorrhea. To invigorate infected and receding gums. Dental decay is only partly due to food particles remaining on the teeth; there is a nutritional element that can be influenced by diet, so the toothbrush is only part of the picture.

Besides, when dental decay begins it can be easily recognized and treated by the dentist.

Most teeth are lost through pyorrhea. When this is not too far advanced the tooth can be saved. Hence the importance of prevention.

Second, when should proper brushing be taught? As early as possible—at the sixth year, when the first permanent teeth come in. Children in their abundant health and confidence have no conception of the necessity of preserving teeth. Only when they go to school realize how important they are. Children must be guided and instructed in these particulars.

Third, technique. The toothbrush should be small and the surface of the bristles should be level. Especially the tip or toe bristles should be as tall or a little taller than the rest. The toe—or front—bristles are the ones that do the work.

Object Lesson in Brushing

If you want to have an object lesson in what a toothbrush is supposed to do, have your dentist put a stain on your teeth that will cling to the dirty parts, after you have rinsed your mouth with water. You will find that the places you need to brush are at the gum margins and along the touching surfaces of the teeth.

Hence a small brush that you can get into the inaccessible parts. Hence a brush with the tip bristles as long as the rest, so that by placing these on the teeth at the point of contact and making a wiggling, rotary movement—not too wide a circle—the bristles get in between the teeth and into the gum margins and clean and harden them.

By cleansing in these crevices you prevent tartar formation at the base, or gum line of the tooth, and it is this tartar which is the cause of pyorrhea.

The other important point in technique is to follow a plan so that all the teeth are brushed.

My dentist compares the teeth to a fence, which you are going to paint. And if you are going to paint it with invisible paint, you have to use a plan which will get all the posts. So start at one end, come all the way along in front, stopping at each tooth, then go around and come down the back. Do this on the uppers and the lowers.

Handle the toothbrush so that the bristles enter the crevices at a right angle—go straight in. You couldn't expect them to clean a space between teeth if they went in sideways.

Don't spike the gums. In other words, don't push the bristles on the gum surface. Approach the gums by laying the bristles on the tooth surface and working up to the gum margin.

If you are not doing this—revise your toothbrush technique.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Fiorello H. La Guardia's formidable showing in the recent New York City mayoralty primaries is making him increasingly talked about presidentially.

Of course it remains for him to be re-elected as well as renominated, but the general expectation among politicians is that his reelection will be by a liberal margin, too. That certainly seems like a fair conclusion to draw from the strength of his primary demonstration.

Not that he hasn't been presidentially mentioned before, but only tentatively. Now he is being quite seriously discussed.

ON WHAT TICKET?

As just what kind of a partisan candidate he might be nominated for the White House is not at all clear.

He could be nominated as a New Dealer, but he never has chanced to run for office under a straight-out Democrat label. He served most of his time in congress as a Republican. However, having been turned down by his district's Republicans for renomination, he accepted the Socialist nomination a year or two, won and was Socialistically recorded on Capitol Hill.

But the Republicans, finding they not beat him, re-assimilated him to their fold.

It is immaterial to La Guardia's individualism.

He has been mayor of New York as a Fusionist, but in sympathy with the New Deal. Yet the New Deal organization did not support him in his renomination fight.

Irene Castle's Divorce Plea Charges Cruelty

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Irene Castle McLaughlin, Chicago society leader and militant campaigner for kindness to animals, sought a divorce from wealthy Major Frederick McLaughlin today, charging cruelty.

Mrs. McLaughlin charged that her third husband struck her and attempted to "abduct" their daughter after a separation.

Mrs. McLaughlin won fame as a dancer. Her first husband, Vernon Castle, was killed in an airplane accident. A second marriage ended with a Paris divorce.

Shortly after she married McLaughlin, she founded "Orphans of the Storm," refuge for homeless dogs. Once she accused a farmer of starving pigs and the farmer was fined $10. The farmer then sued Mrs. McLaughlin for $10,000, on a charge of slander and malicious prosecution. Their lawyers quibbled for weeks on whether hogs must live in muddy pens.

Mrs. McLaughlin charged that during their 1924 honeymoon in China, McLaughlin struck her in the face. He struck her again in 1924, the suit charged, choked her in 1933, and knocked her down in 1937.

The McLaughlins separated July 7 but were negotiating for a reconciliation. Then, the suit charged, McLaughlin tried to "abduct" Barbara Irene, 12, from her mother, and now Mrs. McLaughlin no longer believes that her suit can be adjusted without loss of her husband's friendship.

McLaughlin is president and

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, of E. Main street.

Mrs. Conrad Weidinger and daughter, Mrs. Mabel Reedy, of Orient, were Thursday visitors in Circleville.

Mrs. Harold Elkins, of Oswego, N. Y. will arrive Friday evening for a month's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Hedges, of N. Pickaway street.

Mrs. George Walker, W. Mound street, was a guest of Mrs. Roy Price of Lancaster, Thursday and attended the first meeting of the Fall season, of the Mothers' Study Circle.

ED AND BLACK READY TO MEET WORTHINGTON GRIDDERS THIS EVENING

COACH ASSIGNS TWO FRESHMEN STARTING ROLES

Russ Liston To Be Right Tackle and Woodward To Play Left Halfback

HEFFNER WINS POSITION

Invaders Expected To Fill Air With Passes

Circleville high school Tigers were ready today to meet Worthington, their second opponent of the grid season under the lights at 8 o'clock this evening.

A week of strenuous drills has left the Red and Black ready for anything that might happen. The squad will be in excellent condition with the exception of Bob Bowsher and Lewis Cooper, both of whom received broken bones in Monday's dummy tackling and scrimmaging. Don Morris, an end replacement, is suffering from a bruised hip, but he was able to engage in Thursday evening's signal workout.

Heffner, Liston Named

Jack Landrum, Tiger coach, has about decided on his starting eleven with only a few experienced gridders to be in the first crew. His ends will be Bill Heffner and Bob Liston, replacing Dave Jackson and Bob Pickard; the tackles will be Bill Merriman and Russ Liston, the latter a freshman, who will be assigned beside his more experienced brother; the guards will be Capt. Garner and Gene Arledge, both of whom performed in the backfield last week, and center will be Junior Martin, who played a part of the Groveport fray at a guard. Martin will fill the hole left by Bob Bowsher's injury.

Three backfield starters are certain, but the coach is not sure about the signal-barking assignment. He leans toward Paul Walters but Bill Stebelman may get the call. Frank Woodward, a freshman, and Martin Walters will be at the halfbacks, and Johnny Noggle will be at fullback.

By starting the team he has picked out, the coach believes he will have capable replacements in Jackson, Pickard, Rooney, Nelson, Price, Joe Arledge, Harden, and several others for the linemen. Backfield replacements are in doubt, although Garner and Arledge can be pulled back if necessary.

Passes Expected
Worthington, if it follows its usual offense, will toss plenty of passes in the direction of the Tiger secondary. The Columbus suburbanites did well by losing to Delaware by only a 20 to 2 score. The college town outfit is one of its best in years, reports indicate.

Worthington asked for 150 students tickets, expecting to bring a large crowd to witness the night game.

Two Champions Beaten In Battle of Titlists

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Mike Jacobs' carnival of champions was a carnival of blood, but never had there been such a show. Two champions lost their crowns in one evening and two champions retained theirs. There were 55 rounds of championship fighting, but not a single knockdown.

Harry Jeffra of Baltimore defeated Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico and became world bantamweight champion.

Fred Apostoli of San Francisco scored a 10-round technical knockout over the aging, bald Marcel Thil of France and won the world middleweight championship (according to the boxing federation of Europe.) Freddie Steele is recognized in this country as world's middleweight champion.

But the other challengers didn't do so well.

Cerferio Garcia of the Philippines was pasted by Barney Ross of Chicago, who, at the cost of a red nose, successfully defended his welterweight crown. Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N. Y., had no trouble retaining his lightweight championship against Pedro Montanez of Puerto Rico.

The carnival was great entertainment but was not the financial success that had been predicted. Promoter Jacobs announced that while 45,000 persons were in the Polo grounds, only 32,600 paid admissions, and that the gross take was $232,644. The net was $19,634, which didn't leave much profit after deducting the $190,000 guaranteed the principals.

GIANTS CLOSE TO NATIONAL TITLE AFTER 8-7 GAME

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 — (UP)—The Yankees had the American league pennant in the bag today, while the Giants had all but tucked away the National league flag.

The Giants were on their way home with a 3 1/2 game lead after knocking down the Cubs for two straight and completing their final western swing with eight victories in 11 games.

With only 10 games left to play, and six of them with the Cardinals, the Cubs' cause looks hopeless. The Giants, with 13 games to play, need nine victories to clinch the pennant, if the Cubs sweep their remaining ten. And that is a big "IF".

Bill Terry's outfit struck a decisive blow yesterday by winning a knock-down-and-drag-out game from the Cubs, 8-7, before 29,414 fans at Wrigley field. The battle was crammed with hair-raising action, and the Cubs kept the result in doubt until the final out. They had the tying and winning runs on base when Augie Galan rolled out to Mel Ott to end the game.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

COUNTING YOUR TRICKS

IF A PLAYER will not take the trouble to count up the positive tricks in sight, and then look for the spots where others may possibly be procured, he can never consider himself an able manipulator of no trump contracts. There are those who select any old path out of several available, until after the hand has been played. Then, when they see how the contract could have been made, they frequently wonder how they could have calculated that in advance. Usually there are sign posts that point the way.

One declarer then kicked the hand away. He reckoned that, if hearts would break evenly, he could get four tricks there, plus two in diamonds and three in spades, if the finesse would work. Trying two heart rounds at once, he was sunk when the suit broke badly and the spade finesse failed. The odds were heavily against what he tried, whereas the odds were in favor of the club suit working. An immediate club lead, after getting in, would have knocked out one club top, whereupon West would have removed the last diamond stopper. Then another club lead would have put West in again to cash two more diamonds, but that would have been all, as the game then would have been sure without any finesse.

A club by North on this deal, followed by 2-Hearts from South, 2-Spades from North, 2-No Trumps by South and 3-No Trumps by North, brought a lead of the diamond deuce from West, who did not like to offer any of the bid suits. Naturally the singleton queen went on it from the board and it was covered by East's king.

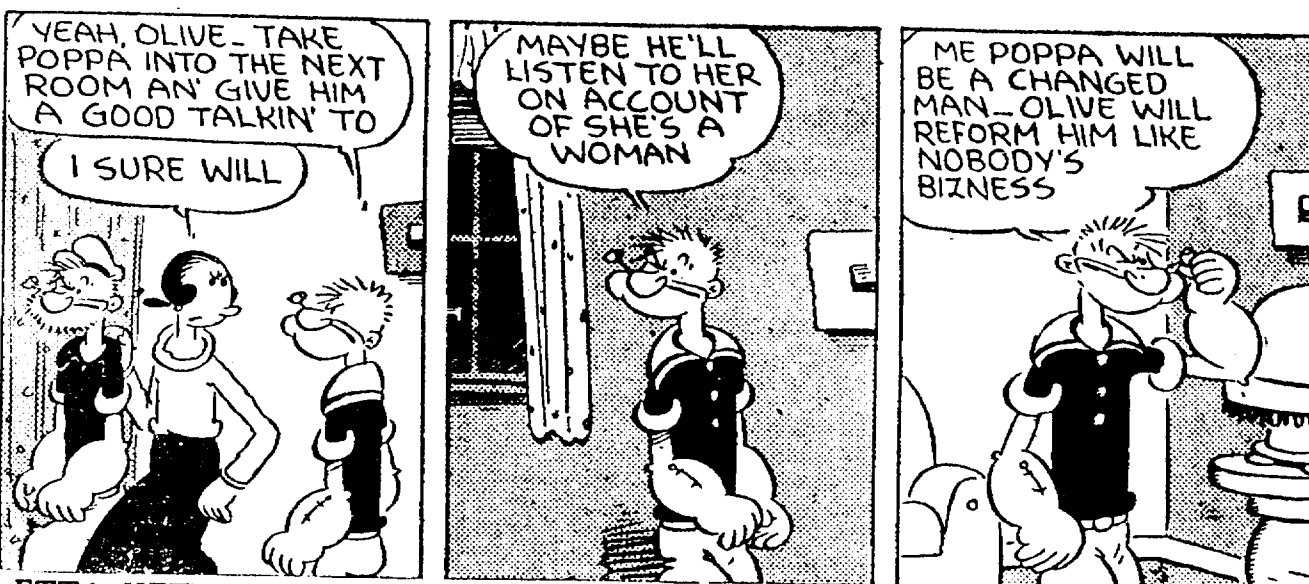

What is the correct bidding of this deal?

COUNTY SCHOOL ENROLLMENT SHOWS REDUCTION OF 63 OVER LAST YEAR

McDOWELL LISTS REPORTS FROM ALL BUILDINGS

Removal From Rural Homes To Larger Centers Cited By Superintendent

FEW SHOW INCREASES

Official Count Delayed Pending Transfers

Improved business conditions resulting in families removing from rural districts to industrial centers and the declining birth rate were advanced by George McDowell, superintendent of county schools, Friday, for a reduction in enrollment in schools this year.

Enrollment figures, announced Friday, showed 3,883 pupils in the county schools this year as compared to 3,946 during the 1936-37 term. Taking the enrollment was delayed this year so schools would have an opportunity to complete all transfers before a count was taken. School officials explained that in previous years when the enrollment was taken the first week of school changes in the figures were necessary when transfers were made.

Some of the schools showed slight increases. Washington township school had the same enrollment as last year.

gleaned from robust reading and re-enacted in life.

Instead of going to his next class yesterday, Robert darted into Miss Mapes' office and named the pretty brunette girl who sat two seats ahead of him.

"Bring that girl into the office," he ordered Miss Mapes. He jerked the Mauser from his pocket.

"What do you want with the girl?" asked the aged principal. "It doesn't matter what I want with her. You'll find out when she gets here."

Four Shots Fired

Desperately, Miss Mapes moved toward the lad. He fired. Turning to flee, he tripped and fell to his knees. Then, in best movie fashion he turned and fired four wild shots over his shoulder. Only the first bullet struck the woman principal.

Miss Mapes summoned the school engineer by buzzer and asked him to call a physician. She was treated, then hospitalized.

Robert, meanwhile, fled to a nearby ravine, where he fired at his head. The bullet narrowly missed the brain.

Classmates said they knew of nothing more than a casual friendship between Robert and the dark-eyed girl. The girl told police she knew Robert only as a classmate and could think of no reason why he should want her brought to the principal's office.

Robert's teachers and classmates said he was a pleasant, bright youngster whose interests were those of any other normal American boy. He was athletic and moderately studious.

He was fond of animal books and played often at the zoo near his home. They said he read detective and western fiction, liked movies and handled a rifle proficiently.

The convicts demanded that he notify the gun tower guard. Larkin picked up the telephone and pretended to issue such an order. There was no phone in the gun tower how-

PUBLIC WORKERS ATTEND DAYTON HEALTH CONFAB

Miss Clara Southward, a case worker, who accompanied them to Dayton, remained for a visit.

Dr. Jacobs pointed out that unskilled labor is three to five times as susceptible to tuberculosis as agricultural workers, and seven times as susceptible as professional and "white collar" men and women.

Prominent among the persons attending the Dayton conference were Dr. V. V. Norton, associate medical director of the Hamilton county Tuberculosis sanatorium, Cincinnati; Dr. S. S. Then, the agency asserted, it was to be agreed also that there would be a joint Chinese-Russian Communist effort to Bolshevize Japan, and China would undertake to follow all Communist International advice regarding anti-Japanese activities in China.

Startling, and apparently fantastic, as were the terms of the treaty which the agency alleged China and Russia were negotiating, they were eloquent of the conviction of Japanese, official and unofficial, that there are secret clauses to the recent non-aggression pact which China and Russia announced.

NAVY TO PROTECT ALL U. S. CITIZENS IN CHINESE PORTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(UP)—The U. S. navy today pledged protection to American nationals in China no matter what the danger to naval personnel.

The pledge stands good for the duration of the Sino-Japanese conflict, the navy announced.

Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, advised all vessels under his command that nationals must be protected even if they disregard warnings and opportunities to leave danger zones.

The navy announced that American armed forces cannot be withdrawn from Chinese areas without bringing "great discredit" on the navy. He announced determination to keep the war craft at their posts regardless of the fact that such action may expose American vessels and American seamen to great danger.

The naval vessels will be stationed in Chinese ports where American citizens are concentrated, and will remain there until it is no longer possible or necessary to protect them, or until they have been evacuated.

ONE YEAR OLD—

ONE YEAR AGO Hunter's hardware store became a Circleville institution. In that brief span of twelve months the confidence in Circleville that prompted purchase of the Barrere-Nickerson establishment has been fully justified. We are proud of our friends, happy in a constantly increasing patronage and highly appreciative of our trade.

OUR objective in the beginning, and our objective today, was and is to give to Pickaway county a modern hardware store that meets all needs economically without sacrifice of quality. Strict adherence to this policy, coupled with a sincere desire to be of service, have won and held scores of new friends.

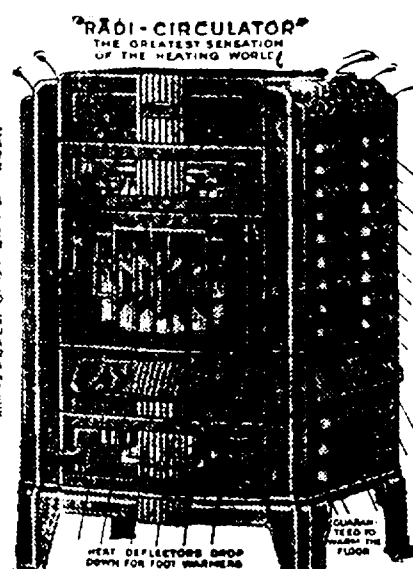

WE want Hunter hardware to be synonymous with good hardware. Before it is made available to our trade all hardware must pass rigid inspection, must qualify to bear our name and uphold our zealously guarded reputation of values offered at reasonable prices.

ON this, our first anniversary, we address all our friends, thanking them for their patronage and pledging ourselves to an even higher degree of service during our second year. We have increased our stocks to meet your requirements and now believe we are justified in presenting for the first time the claim that "If Its Hardware Hunter's Has It."
